▲ EUROPE : Premier tir d'évaluation par un Rafale de la Marine nationale d'un missile ASMPA-R à capacité nucléaire

Dissuasion nucléaire française : tout premier tir d'un missile ASMPA-R par un Rafale de la Marine nationale

Il doit permettre à la composante nucléaire aéroportée française (FAS et FANu) de pouvoir déployer un vecteur rénové et de fait, de pérenniser la crédibilité de cette composante. Son successeur est en cours de développement et est déjà connu : l'ASN4G. De manière plus générale, la mise en service au sein de la FANu de ce missile suit un renouveau constant des capacités stratégiques des Forces armées françaises : ASMPA-R au sein des Forces Aériennes Stratégiques (FAS), plus récemment, le nouveau missile balistique M51.3 au sein de la Force Océanique Stratégique (FOSt) et désormais, l'ASMPA-R au sein de la FANu.

Un Rafale Marine a effectué un tir d'évaluation du missile ASMPA Rénové à capacité nucléaire

Alors que le missile balistique stratégique mer-sol M51.3 vient d'être officiellement admis au service, un Rafale Marine a effectué avec succès un tir d'évaluation du missile de croisière ASMPA-R [Air Sol Moyenne Portée Amélioré – Rénové] à capacité nucléaire, dans le cadre de l'opération Diomède, ce 13 novembre. [...] Il s'agit du second tir d'évaluation d'un ASMPA Rénové, le premier ayant été effectué par un Rafale B des Forces aériennes stratégiques [FAS] de l'armée de l'Air & de l'Espace [AAE], au titre de l'opération Durandal, en mai 2024. La rénovation à mi-vie du missile ASMPA-A a été lancée en 2016. [...] « La Force aéronavale nucléaire, composante Marine aéroportée de la Dissuasion, a réalisé aujourd'hui un tir d'évaluation du missile ASMPA-R. Articulée autour du porte-avions et de son groupe aéronaval, la FANu offre d'autres moyens d'action, complémentaires et crédibles », a-t-il [l'amiral Nicolas VAUJOUR] commenté, via le réseau social X.

French Navy Rafale Jet fires ASMPA-R missile in carrier nuclear raid drill

The geopolitical scope of Operation Diomedes extends beyond the technical dimension. The test occurs at a time when debates on deterrence re-emerge in Europe, against a backdrop of renewed tension with Russia and questions within NATO regarding the distribution of nuclear responsibilities. By confirming that France maintains a modernised, carrier-borne airborne component under strict national control, Paris signals that it retains an independent strategic option, able to operate from the sea and therefore less exposed to a pre-emptive strike. This posture, supported by a defence industrial and technological base capable of sustaining and developing sensitive systems, contributes to European stability by underlining the resilience of the French deterrence model. For European partners and rival powers alike, the test indicates that French modernisation follows a planned trajectory, that the transition to ASN4G is anticipated, and that France remains one of the few actors able to ensure the continuity of an autonomous deterrent based on complementary air and naval means.

▲ AMÉRIQUES : Les Etats-Unis d'Amérique lancent l'opération Southern Spear pour renforcer leur flanc sud face au narcotrafic

U.S. launches Operation Southern Spear, unveiling new robotic fleet to target cartels

The United States is launching a major new military and surveillance campaign in the Western Hemisphere, deploying an unprecedented mix of robotic air and sea vessels to counter Latin American drug-trafficking cartels. Called Operation Southern Spear, the initiative was formally announced Thursday night by Defense Secretary Pete Hegseth, who said through his X account that the mission follows a direct order from President Donald Trump... "Southern Spear will operationalize a heterogeneous mix of Robotic and Autonomous Systems to support the detection and monitoring of illicit trafficking while learning lessons for other theaters," said Cmdr. Foster Edwards, 4th Fleet's Hybrid Fleet Director. "This will help develop critical techniques and procedures for integrating RAS into the maritime environment"... On Tuesday, the world's largest and most technologically advanced aircraft carrier, the USS Gerald R. Ford, entered the U.S. Southern Command area of responsibility.

Operation Southern Spear: Map Shows Where US Military Is Deployed

The Trump administration is conducting a military campaign in the Caribbean, where it has deployed naval and air forces in what it has framed as a crackdown on narcotics smuggling. American forces have carried out strikes on about 20 vessels in international waters, killing at least 76 people, as confirmed by Washington, most recently on Monday. The U.S. has said that the boats were linked to the regime of Venezuelan president Nicolas Maduro, although Caracas has denied this. Operation Southern Spear will add to speculation over whether the U.S. will directly attack Venezuela... The U.S. force in the Caribbean also includes, F-35B fighter jets, V-22 Ospreys, MQ-9 Reaper drones, P-8 Poseidon maritime patrol aircraft and personnel at Roosevelt Roads, Puerto Rico.

« L'opération Southern Spear », cette guerre à bas bruit que mène Donald Trump

Le ministre de la Défense n'a pas détaillé ce qui différencie ces précédentes actions militaires, déjà lancées, de cette nouvelle opération. Cependant, selon CBS, de hauts responsables militaires ont présenté au président américain des options pour d'éventuelles opérations au Venezuela, y compris des frappes terrestres, qui pourraient être incluses dans l'opération... L'armée vénézuélienne a annoncé, mardi, un déploiement « massif » dans tout le pays, contre « l'impérialisme » américain. Le Venezuela accuse Washington de prendre prétexte du narcotrafic « pour imposer un changement de régime » à Caracas et s'emparer de son pétrole. Le haut-commissaire des Nations unies aux droits de l'homme, Volker Türk, a évoqué de « solides indices » d'exécutions « extrajudiciaires ». De son côté, Donald Trump a donné des indications contradictoires sur sa stratégie, évoquant par moments des frappes sur le sol vénézuélien et des jours comptés pour Nicolas Maduro, mais écartant aussi l'idée d'une guerre.

Time for Washington to Recognize Central Asia's Strategic Value, Experts Say

He noted that the region now increasingly speaks “with one voice” in international forums and that other major players, including Japan, the European Union, and China, have also formed their own C5+ formats with the region, showing its growing geopolitical significance. Aripov projected that by 2050, Central Asia's population will reach 100 million, with average GDP growth above 5% across all states. Since 2016, the region has attracted over $200 billion in foreign direct investment and holds nearly half of the world's critical minerals identified by the U.S Geological Survey. While Russia and China still account for roughly half of Central Asia's external trade, Aripov pointed to an increasing presence of alternative powers such as Türkiye, South Korea, Japan, and India as a sign that the region is shifting from dependency to diversification. “The main challenge for Central Asia is to remain open, connected, and stable, not to become an arena for confrontation among great powers, but rather a platform for cooperation. The U.S. could play a crucial role in strengthening Central Asia's strategic autonomy by supporting diversified partnerships,” he said.

Que retenir du sommet entre Donald Trump et l'Asie centrale à Washington ?

La Russie et la Chine sont des acteurs exerçant une influence historique dans la région. Bien que la marge d'action de Moscou a été réduite avec la guerre en Ukraine, Moscou demeure attachée à son influence en Asie centrale : Vladimir Poutine a participé en septembre au sommet Russie-Asie centrale au Tadjikistan, quelques mois après un sommet Chine-Asie centrale à Astana. L'Union européenne a également organisé un sommet avec les dirigeants de la région en avril en Ouzbékistan pour discuter des investissements dans les infrastructures et de l'accès aux minéraux critiques d'Asie centrale. Les Etats-Unis semblent avoir franchi une étape importante avec la réunion du format C5+1, qui résultera dans une présence américaine fortifiée dans la région... Washington cherche désormais de nouveaux moyens de contourner Pékin sur le marché des métaux... d'où naît l'intérêt réciproque du sommet.

Le Kazakhstan rejoint les accords d'Abraham, Donald Trump se réjouit

Le Kazakhstan a annoncé jeudi 6 novembre qu'il rejoindra les accords d'Abraham, un processus qui en 2020 avait vu plusieurs pays arabes normaliser leurs relations avec Israël, une décision qualifiée de "réels progrès" par le président américain... Le pays d'Asie centrale a toutefois déjà des relations diplomatiques avec Israël, contrairement aux premiers signataires... Le pays participe jeudi avec d'autres États d'Asie centrale à un sommet à la Maison Blanche avec Donald Trump. Un haut responsable américain n'a pas précisé à quoi le Kazakhstan s'engageait exactement avec cette décision. Ce processus est une priorité diplomatique de Donald Trump.

US-Central Asia gathering yields deals

As a warm-up to the US-Central Asia summit meeting, the presidents of Kazakhstan and Uzbekistan announced a bevy of deals and agreements covering a wide range of economic sectors, including critical minerals. The leaders of the five Central Asian states met with President Donald Trump on November 6 at the White House under the C5+1 format, which is marking its 10th anniversary as the main framework for US cooperation with the region... Secretary of State Marco Rubio indicated that the United States viewed the summit as a steppingstone to expanded cooperation, saying the United States was eager to help Central Asian states reach their development goals... “Our national interests are aligned,” he added.

▲ ASIE — OCÉANIE : Mise en service officielle par la Chine d'un troisième porte-avions

How China's latest aircraft carrier will challenge western maritime dominance

In the context of Beijing's sustained seapower strategy, the long-term implications for the security and leadership of the global maritime order are certainly significant and enduring... This expands Beijing's operational options. It elevates China into a select group of four nations (US, UK, France, China) capable of independently operating a carrier battle group with the capacity to generate substantial strategic advantages from the sea. Among this group, however, the US remains far ahead. It enjoys a significant lead in terms of carrier fleet size, technological sophistication, operational experience, global reach and sustained carrier strike capabilities... Unlike other authoritarian states such as Russia or Iran, the power base of China's regime is much more dependent on international trade and so on freedom of navigation. Consequently, China does not seek to disrupt the global maritime order. It wants to lead it and initiate a new cycle of global dominance.

Beijing commissions third aircraft carrier, first one made in China

The Fujian is China's third carrier and the first that it both designed and built itself. It is perhaps the most visible example so far of Xi's massive military overhaul and expansion that aims to have a modernized force by 2035 and one that is “world class” by mid century — which most take to mean capable of going toe-to-toe with the United States... Though the island sits right off of China's coast, if China had the ability to position an aircraft carrier group or groups around the Second Island Chain — between Taiwan and the U.S. Pacific Fleet headquarters in Hawaii — that could delay possible American military assistance in the event of a Chinese attack... Numerically it only has three carriers compared to the U.S. Navy's 11, and while China's carriers are all conventionally powered, the U.S.'s are all nuclear powered which means they can operate almost indefinitely without being refueled - dramatically increasing their range.

La Chine a officiellement admis au service actif le CNS Fujian, son troisième porte-avions

Contrairement à ses deux prédécesseurs, les CNS Liaoning [ex-Varyag] et CNS Shandong, de conception soviétique et dotés chacun d'un tremplin, le CNS Fujian est en configuration dite CATOBAR [Catapult Assisted Take-Off But Arrested Recovery], c'est-à-dire qu'il est équipé d'au moins trois catapultes, en l'occurrence électromagnétiques [ou EMALS], et de brins d'arrêt. Plus imposant, avec un déplacement d'environ 80 000 tonnes pour une longueur de 316 mètres, il est pourvu d'une propulsion conventionnelle... le CNS Fujian donnera à la composante navale de l'Armée populaire de libération [APL] une capacité de projeter de la puissance aérienne au-delà de « la troisième chaîne d'îles », laquelle va des îles Aléoutiennes à la Nouvelle-Zélande... Cela étant, ce n'est pas parce qu'il a été admis au service que le CNS Fujian est pleinement opérationnel.

China commissions first electromagnetic catapults-equipped aircraft carrier, Fujian; country officially enters three-carrier era President Xi Jinping on Wednesday attended the commissioning and flag-presenting ceremony of the Fujian, China's first aircraft carrier equipped with electromagnetic catapults, in South China's Hainan Province... Zhang Junshe, a Chinese military affairs expert, told the Global Times that the commissioning of the Fujian is a symbol of the achievements in the transformation of the PLA Navy from coastal defense to far seas defense... Like the aircraft carrier Shandong, the Fujian is also commissioned in Sanya. Zhang said that in the future, the two carriers might be deployed in the same port facing the South China Sea... China's development of aircraft carriers aims to better implement a defensive national defense policy and safeguard national sovereignty, security, and development interests. At the same time, this also helps maintain regional peace and stability... "In the future, China needs to build more carriers to better safeguard national sovereignty, security, and development interests," Zhang said.

The Tigray crackdown: Power struggles and regional stakes

Tigrayan politics "have fractured," leaving the region "battling itself as much as its neighbours" along an increasingly unstable frontier. Recent incidents illustrate how competing narratives heighten tensions. The situation reflects a fragmented political landscape in which multiple Tigrean actors claim legitimacy, while "command-and-control has crumbled." Several trajectories are possible over the next year, including a worst-case scenario in which clashes around Megale/Abala trigger the collapse of the Pretoria Agreement. The most dangerous evolution of the crisis would be an escalation in Afar that could draw in Eritrea.

Following clashes between the Tigray Defence Forces and "Free Land" militants on Wednesday, the Ethiopian government reportedly launched a drone strike on a Tigray military base. The Ethiopian government reportedly launched a drone strike on a Tigray military base on 10 November. The Tigray People's Liberation Front (TPLF) accused the government of violating the Pretoria Agreement. The strike hit a base in the "Milka area." The leader of the Free Land group, said that his forces are now operating "in our own areas of Tigray" and not in Afar, contrary to some accusations. He claimed that the recent clash with the TDF lasted "seven or eight hours," resulting in only one injury on his side, and called for a "national council ... that has the trust of all Tigrayans" to end the infighting.

Tigray fighters enter Ethiopia's Afar region, stoking fears of new conflict

Afar regional authorities claim that "TPLF fighters 'entered Afar territory by force today'," seizing six villages and "bombing civilians with mortars." They accuse the TPLF of attacking herders in Megale district "with heavy weapons fire." The Afar administration warns that if the TPLF "does not immediately cease its actions ... it will assume its defensive duty to protect itself against any external attack." They argue that this incursion "openly destroys the Pretoria peace agreement," the 2022 deal that ended the war. Tensions remain high between Addis Ababa and the TPLF, under suspicion of re-establishing ties with Eritrea.

▲ MOYEN-ORIENT : Visite officielle du président syrien Al-Charaa à Washington

How Ahmed al-Sharaa ended up being welcomed to the White House

Al-Sharaa's stunning ascendancy to power has seen him become an almost mythic figure in Middle Eastern regional politics. As the head of an armed group known as Hayat Tahrir al-Sham (HTS), he overthrew Syrian dictator Bashar al-Assad in 2024 and ended the family's 50-year reign. [...] Although the war in Syria has largely ended, it would also be naive to think that sectarian violence has disappeared. [...] Many regional players have an interest in al-Sharaa's project succeeding. Lebanon, Turkey and Jordan want an end to conflict on their borders and to see refugees return home, while Saudi Arabia is keen to steal Syria as an ally from Iran. Al-Sharaa is even in talks with Israel about a military and security agreement, and he has already visited the Russian leader, Vladimir Putin, in Moscow. Shia-led Iraq is likely to be at best suspicious and at worst hostile to al-Sharaa, though both it and Iran may be left with no choice but to accept the new status quo.

Israel's lessons learned from Syria's Sharaa historic White House meeting with Trump - analysis

There are many skeptics about Sharaa who think the new government in Damascus has a problem with its extremist past - only time will tell whether this changes. [...] In addition, Turkish Foreign Minister Hakan Fidan was in Washington. Ankara is a key supporter of the new Syrian government. Turkey is also a NATO ally of the US, and Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan has warm ties with Trump. [...] For now, the White House is deeply supportive of the new Syria. Nevertheless, there are challenges ahead. [...] This is important because it shows how Sharaa's trip to Washington could now foster improved ties with Israel. The issue of Syria-Israel ties is going to be complex. Israel moved into areas along the ceasefire buffer zone after the Assad regime fell. The IDF has also carried out airstrikes in Syria. Israeli ministers have condemned Sharaa as a "jihadists" in the past, and they have threatened him. Israel's leadership has also said it would stand in support of the Druze in Sweida. This creates many challenges. While Israel wants southern Syria demilitarized, this could also lead to a power vacuum.

Sharaa Visit to Washington Affirms Syria Realignment

Sharaa's integration into the anti-ISIS coalition will represent an advance in the Trump team's plan to transition the anti-ISIS mission to Damascus slowly. Doing so will enable [...] But Syria's military capacity is limited because its forces lack discipline and organization, remaining centered on militia-like structures. In addition, some factions within the military—including thousands of foreign fighters—continue to adhere to jihadist beliefs and might not be committed to fighting ISIS. A major impediment to transferring the anti-ISIS mission to Damascus includes the slow progress of U.S.-mediated talks to integrate the Kurdish-dominated Syrian Democratic Forces (SDF), which has been Washington's leading anti-ISIS partner, into the Syrian military.[...]. Sharaa's decision to join the anti-ISIS coalition represents an initial step in what the Trump team hopes will become a broader integration of Syria into a U.S.-led strategic architecture for the region.
