V4 Reloaded or the Illusion of an Ally? Hungary after the elections of 12 April 2026

For Poland, the change in Budapest carries significance that reaches far beyond bilateral relations. In recent years the Visegrád Group was a hollow format : Orbán instrumentalised it selectively when it served his purposes [...] The possibilities that are opening up are concrete. A coordinated Central European voice in budget negotiations with Berlin and Paris, a common position on the eastern flank, coordination on matters where Poland has for years been acting without a natural partner in the Visegrád format.

Hongrie : ce que la victoire de Péter Magyar change (ou pas) pour l'Union européenne

La réaction de la Commission européenne aux résultats des élections législatives hongroises ne s'est pas faite attendre. [...] Ursula von der Leyen a salué le vainqueur. "La Hongrie a choisi l'Europe. L'Europe a toujours choisi la Hongrie. L'Union s'en trouve renforcée", a écrit la présidente de l'exécutif européen sur la plateforme X. [...] L'arrivée de Péter Magyar devrait également mettre fin au feuilleton du prêt européen de 90 milliards à destination de l'Ukraine. Le futur Premier ministre, qui devrait prendre ses fonctions courant mai, lèvera son veto à l'adoption de cette enveloppe, à condition que Budapest n'y participe pas financièrement en raison de ses finances publiques. [...] Plusieurs dossiers risquent de rester tendus entre Budapest et Bruxelles. Sur la question migratoire par exemple, le futur chef du gouvernement adopte une position similaire à celle de son prédécesseur.

Brussels and Kyiv should have realistic expectations about Magyar's Hungary

That is reassuring news for Ukraine. Since the start of Russia's full-scale invasion, Hungary has been the biggest and most constant obstacle to EU support for Ukraine. Orbán has continuously criticized Western efforts to aid Kyiv, accused the West of prolonging the conflict, and proposed restoring ties with Moscow. [...] While Magyar's election provides ample reason for optimism, there is also good cause to temper any expectations of Hungary now playing a leading European role in support of Ukraine. Throughout the recent campaign, Magyar remained ambivalent on a number of key Ukraine policies. The new Hungarian leader has spoken out against fast-tracked EU accession talks for Ukraine and reaffirmed this position following his election victory. "It would be impossible for a country at war to be taken by the EU," he commented on Monday. Magyar insisted all countries must go through the same accession process and said he'd hold a Hungarian referendum on Ukraine's candidacy once this process was complete. [...] While Magyar's position on Russia will be drastically different from his predecessor, he stated that he continues to seek "pragmatic" ties with Moscow, while acknowledging Ukraine as the clear victim in the ongoing conflict.

Orbán's loss won't stop Russian influence campaigns, but it shows they're beatable

Russian efforts in Hungary will continue. "Even without Viktor Orbán, Fidesz controls roughly 80 percent of Hungary's state media landscape and remains a willing partner. If anything, Russian operations will be even more network-driven, leveraging political allies and entrenched media infrastructure to sustain anti-Ukraine narratives and erode trust in the EU," said former Assistant Secretary of State for Intelligence and Research Ellen McCarthy who now leads the Trust in Media Cooperative. [...] Magyar's win, however, also offers a blueprint for beating Russian and Russian-aligned election interference. Magyar was particularly gifted at social-media campaigning, visiting more than 700 cities and towns across Hungary and continuously putting out social-media content that was watchable and nimble, said Carothers, a part-time resident of Hungary. [...] "In the coming days, the Fidesz party, together with Russian services, will launch a smear and disinformation campaign that has already been tested in Moldova, primarily on social media, particularly on TikTok ». Perhaps the biggest factor that drove an election turnout above 80 percent was the simple fact that Hungarians are increasingly sensitive to Russia's growing attacks on democracy, wrote Matt Steinglass, the Europe editor for The Economist.

▲ AMÉRIQUES : Opération américaine d'exfiltration de l'équipage d'un F-15 abattu en Iran

Everything We Now Know About The Operation To Rescue The F-15E WSO

Monday afternoon, President Donald Trump and Air Force Gen. Dan Caine, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, offered new details about the complex and dangerous missions to rescue the WSO and pilot – call signs DUDE44 Bravo and DUDE44 Alpha – whose Strike Eagle had been shot down April 3, the first loss of crewed aircraft to enemy fire during Epic Fury... These rescue missions involved hundreds of troops, scores of aircraft and diversion operations over more than a half dozen different parts of Iran. It required risking the lives of many of those personnel to recover the two airmen... Intelligence gathered by U.S. and Israeli officials was put together to determine if the airman was alone, surrounded by Iranians, or whether he had been captured, and this was an attempt to dupe them... This rescue operation was certainly a bright spot for a White House and Pentagon beleaguered by global criticism of an unpopular war that has dragged on for more than a month with no clear end in sight.

Les forces spéciales américaines ont mené une opération audacieuse pour récupérer le navigateur du F-15E perdu en Iran
Selon ses explications, « des dizaines d'avions, dotés des armes les plus redoutables au monde », ont été impliqués dans cette mission. Cela étant, l'officier a été blessé [sans doute lors de son éjection]. « Mais il s'en remettra », a rassuré M. Trump, avant d'affirmer que « c'est la première fois, de mémoire militaire, que deux pilotes américains sont secourus séparément en plein territoire ennemi ». Cette opération de sauvetage a également mobilisé des moyens de la CIA.

US special forces rescue second F-15 airman from Iran

U.S. special forces rescued a downed airman in Iran in a complex operation that averted a potential crisis for President Donald Trump, as the war entered its sixth week with little sign of progress in diplomatic efforts for a resolution... Iran's military said several U.S. aircraft were destroyed during the operation, including two military transport planes and two Black Hawk helicopters. Footage posted on social media showed burned out aircraft wreckage, which Reuters verified was in the area.

▲ EURASIE : L'Ukraine et l'Allemagne élèvent leur relation au niveau d'un partenariat stratégique

Germany and Ukraine strike defence deal on missiles, drones and battlefield data sharing

Berlin will finance arms contracts with US and German manufacturers, Chancellor Friedrich Merz said during a visit by Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy, to supply Kyiv with "several hundred Patriot missiles" as well as additional launchers for IRIS-T air defence systems. Mikhail Fedorov, Ukraine's defence minister, said the €4 billion package should finance 36 such launchers. The two countries have also reached an agreement to establish a joint venture to produce medium- and long-range drones using advanced technologies with Germany also providing financing to support Ukraine in developing deep-strike capabilities... Zelenskyy has long pleaded for more support, especially when it comes to air defence, as the country continues to be under daily drone and missile attack from Russia. This, as more Patriot missiles were used by the US in the first four weeks of its war against Iran last month than in the four years of war in Ukraine – delaying deliveries to Ukraine and European allies and stoking fear of shortages.

Declaration on a strategic partnership between Germany and Ukraine

Russia's unprovoked, illegal and unjustified war of aggression against Ukraine poses a common and immediate threat to both Ukraine's freedom, as well as to Germany's and Europe's security, stability and prosperity. Germany and Ukraine, together with our partners, are united in countering the Russian aggression... In recent years, Germany has generated an unprecedented level of political, diplomatic, military, economic, financial and humanitarian support for Ukraine, becoming Ukraine's most important bilateral partner in 2026... The future of Ukraine lies within the European Union. Germany reaffirms its steadfast support for Ukraine's membership of the EU in line with the merit-based approach... Germany fully supports Ukraine's right to choose its own security arrangements and decide its own future, free from outside interference. Germany stands by all commitments made by NATO towards promoting Ukraine's Euro-Atlantic integration and will support efforts towards building the allied consensus required for membership.

Germany, Ukraine elevate ties to strategic partnership with new defense deal

Ukraine and Germany signed a defense cooperation agreement during President Volodymyr Zelenskyy's visit to Berlin on April 14, elevating bilateral ties to a strategic partnership. The deal expands military cooperation between the two countries, with Berlin pledging additional support in key areas, including air defense, long-range weapons, drones, and ammunition... The agreement also includes a memorandum of understanding between the two countries' defense ministries on the electronic exchange of military data. Zelenskyy said several additional cooperation agreements were signed the same day... The move comes amid Kyiv's broader push to deepen defense partnerships abroad and expand its rapidly growing domestic arms industry. In recent weeks, Ukraine secured defense cooperation arrangements with three Gulf countries and, in late March, signed a 10-year security agreement with Bulgaria. Ukraine's defense sector has expanded significantly since the start of Russia's full-scale invasion, with the country developing drones and electronic warfare systems.

▲ ASIE – OCÉANIE : Rencontre entre Xi Jinping et Sergueï Lavrov à Pékin

Moyen-Orient : la Russie prête à "compenser" le déficit énergétique de la Chine

La Chine et la Russie ont affirmé leur proximité mercredi face à la guerre au Moyen-Orient, Moscou offrant à Pékin de "compenser" le déficit de ressources énergétiques qu'elle subirait à cause du conflit. Le ministre russe des Affaires étrangères Sergueï Lavrov, en visite de deux jours en Chine, a confirmé la venue de Vladimir Poutine au cours du premier semestre 2026... Toutes deux partenaires de l'Iran et rivales des États-Unis, la Chine et la Russie sont des voisines aux relations diplomatiques et économiques étroites. La guerre, la quasi-paralysie du détroit d'Ormuz et, désormais, le blocus des ports iraniens par les États-Unis affectent directement la première... La Chine restait en mars le premier acheteur mondial de combustibles fossiles russes... Le président Xi a attendu mardi pour s'exprimer sur la guerre et a déclaré que son pays continuerait à jouer un rôle diplomatique "constructif". Sa diplomatie a cependant haussé le ton vis-à-vis des États-Unis en jugeant "irresponsable" le blocus des ports iraniens.

FM Lavrov Pledges Energy Support to China After Meeting With Xi

Chinese President Xi Jinping met with Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov on Wednesday, part of a flurry of high-stakes diplomacy in Beijing this week as world leaders scramble to navigate the economic fallout of the war in the Middle East. Xi has hosted the leaders of Spain, Vietnam and Abu Dhabi in recent days, but the arrival of the top Russian diplomat was the main focus this week, as Russia is a top energy supplier for China... Lavrov, in his turn, told Xi that Chinese-Russian relations play a "stabilizing role in world affairs" at a time of global "chaos and turmoil"... His two-day visit to China also laid the groundwork for an upcoming summit between Xi and Russian President Vladimir Putin. Lavrov confirmed that the two leaders are expected to meet in person within the first half of this year. The discussions follow a day of intensive talks between Lavrov and Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi, which included "in-depth exchanges" on the wars in the Middle East and Ukraine.

Russia's Lavrov Visits Beijing As China Steps Up Iran War Diplomacy

Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov arrived in Beijing as China steps up diplomatic efforts around the war in Iran amid a US blockade on vessels calling at Iranian ports that the Chinese Foreign Ministry has called "dangerous and irresponsible"... Lavrov's two-day trip to China comes after peace talks in Islamabad between the United States and Iran failed to reach an agreement, prompting US President Donald Trump to call for a blockade on ships calling at Iranian ports as they transit the Strait... Analysts say China is aiming to strengthen its global standing amid the war in Iran as it looks to portray the United States as a destabilizing force in international politics and trade... While part of regular engagement between Beijing and Moscow, Lavrov's visit occurs at a crucial moment in the Iran war and China's relationship with the United States. Trump is expected to travel to Beijing on May 14-15 for a summit with Xi, which is set to focus on a range of trade, technology, and military issues... China is heavily dependent on oil that passes through the Strait of Hormuz and is anxious about how global economic fallout from the war in Iran could put its own economy at risk.

Three Years On: How the Middle East is Reshaping Sudan's War

« Sudan stands at the edge of a new turning point as, three years into civil war, the confrontation over Iran begins to disrupt the fragile regional alliances that have helped sustain both sides of the conflict. » « The conflict [...] has since evolved into a war increasingly shaped by indirect external involvement. Egypt, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates back the belligerents in different ways: financially, militarily and diplomatically. » « The confrontation between Iran, the United States and Israel [...] is accelerating this process and reshaping the priorities of regional states[...]. » « The danger is that this shift will not remain confined to the centre of the regional system. As restraints weaken in the Gulf, actors on the periphery [...] may feel increasingly able to act outside established norms. » « The greatest risk is [...] that Sudan's Gulf patrons [...] may scale back, recalibrate or fragment their engagement without coordination, leaving a vacuum that local actors will fill in violent and unpredictable ways. »

▲ MOYEN-ORIENT : Cessez-le-feu de deux semaines entre l'Iran et les Etats-Unis

Fragile Iran Cease-Fire May Hang In Balance Over 'Misunderstanding' On Lebanon

Washington and Tehran agreed late on April 7 to a two-week cease-fire, pulling back from the brink to allow the two sides time to negotiate a peace deal. After some initial violence and the attacks in Lebanon, the cease-fire appeared to mainly hold in Iran and throughout the Gulf overnight... Along with the dispute over the situation in Lebanon, uncertainty over shipping freedom in the Strait of Hormuz also clouds the prospects for a lasting cease-fire. While giving no details of the Iranian proposal, Trump insisted that Tehran must allow the free passage of ships in the strait, a key shipping lane through which some 20 percent of the world's oil and gas passes... The waterway is crucial to global oil and natural gas transport and has been largely closed since the beginning of US-Israeli air strikes on Iran on February 28. Tehran has retaliated by launching missiles and drones against Israel and US Arab allies in the region. The Wall Street Journal reported that Iran told mediators it would limit the number of ships crossing the strait to around a dozen a day and that it would collect toll charges for its permission. Prior to the US-Israeli war, ships moved freely through the strait without the need for coordination with Iran.

Questions Loom Over Iran Ceasefire

The United States and Iran agreed to a two-week ceasefire just under an hour before U.S. President Donald Trump's Tuesday deadline to hammer the country with an unprecedented level of airstrikes was due to expire, with Tehran announcing it will temporarily reopen the strategically vital Strait of Hormuz. Both sides are now claiming victory in the conflict, which lasted more than a month and disrupted global financial markets, with oil prices driving sharply higher... Iran also portrayed the ceasefire as a huge success, stating it had agreed to begin talks with Washington on Friday in Pakistan as part of efforts to bring the conflict to an end. Iran's Supreme National Security Council conditionally accepted the two-week ceasefire if attacks against Iran are halted... Among the key Iranian demands are controlled transit through the Strait of Hormuz, coordinated with the Iranian military. The plan would also require the lifting of all primary and secondary sanctions, payment of full compensation to Iran, and release of all frozen Iranian assets. It is unclear if the United States will actually cede to any of these latter points. Making matters more confusing, a U.S. official said today that the 10-point ceasefire plan published by Iran is not the same set of conditions that were agreed to by the White House for pausing the war.

What to make of the Iran war cease-fire

Is this the finale, or just an intermission? On Tuesday night, US President Donald Trump and Iranian Foreign Minister Abbas Araghchi announced a two-week cease-fire in the Iran war. It's the first pause in strikes since the conflict began on February 28, but reports on Wednesday of attacks on Gulf states and Iran closing the Strait of Hormuz once again in response to Israeli attacks on Lebanon have already raised questions about the cease-fire's effectiveness... With Tehran showing no intention to budge on issues ranging from nuclear enrichment to ballistic-missile development, this cease-fire appears to be "more of an off-ramp than a real framework for negotiations," Victoria says. Iran has reportedly demanded the full withdrawal of US forces from the region and the payment of reparations, among other terms that Nate describes as "beyond maximalist"... Meanwhile, "Iran sacrificed its relationships with Gulf neighbors, continues to rely on brute force to repress internal dissent, and continues to struggle to meet the long-standing demands of its people," Nate tells us. "The regime might celebrate its survival, but its outlook is bleak." "The United States and Israel demonstrated their superior military power and ability to inflict punishing damage to Iran's military capabilities".
